was wavering. I have got the position examined and I would like the various Dictionaries referred to for the purpose of finding out the meanings of the word used by Sri C. J. Muckannapa.

The word-Buddi Bhramane is a compound word consisting of two independent words, namely, Buddhi and Bhramane. The word Buddhi according to Standard Sanskrit Dictionary by Mr. L.R. Vaidya B.A., L.L.B., is used to denote any of the following meanings :

"Perception, intelligence, knowledge, presence of mind, impression, notion, feeling, mind, purpose, plan design".

Bhramane means wandering, turning round, shaking, tottering, erring, giddiness. (Page 539)

According to the Lexicographer, Dr. Shivaram Karanth, Buddi means ಜ್ಞಾನ, ಅಂತಃಕರಣ, ತಿಳುವಳಿಕೆ, ವಿವೇಕ.

and Bhramane means :—ತಿರುಗುವಿಕೆ, ನುತ್ತುವಿಕೆ.

In the Mysore Universihy Dictionary, under the word aberration (Page 2) the Kannada meanings noted there are as follows :—

1. ಬುದ್ಧಿಭ್ರಮಣೆ 2. ದಾರಿ ತಪ್ಪುವುದು.

According to Bharadwaja (Page 2) aberration also means Chittabhrame or Mathibhrame.

According to V S Apte's Sanskrit-English Dictionary, (Page 393) Buddhi Bhrame means : distraction or aberration of mind.

According to Rev. F Kittel, Bhramana means : roaming, wandering, wavering, staggering, unsteadiness, etc. (Page 1180)

With reference to the context in which the Hon'ble Member has used the word, it may mean one of the following :—

1. abberration of mind 2. wavering of mind 3. distraction of mind 4. unsteadiness of mind or 5. tottering of mind.

It is thus clear that I did not commit any error because the word aberration is found to be equivalent in English to Buddhi Bhramane. To impute to an Hon'ble Member that his mind is in abberration and that it is not steady and proper, implies a serious charge, thereby indicating that he is not in a fit position to carry on the business of the House.

That is why I said that the word would be expunged and I do not think that there is anything that Sri Muckannappa could say because on another occasion I gave him an opportunity and he had sent me 3 dictionaries which I have got here. I have referred to as many dictionaries as possible. Therefore, as ordered previously the word will stand expunged.
